CALL FOR PAPERS

Prometheus* is a national undergraduate philosophy journal published by undergraduate students at Johns Hopkins University. The purpose of the journal is to promote philosophic discourse of the highest standard by offering students an opportunity to engage in open discussion, participate in the production and publication of an academic journal, and establish a community of aspiring philosophers.

Each year, Prometheus publishes quality undergraduate papers in philosophy. Each issue contains a selection of essays on various philosophic topics as well as interviews with notable philosophers and reviews on recent philosophic articles, books, and essays. We accept submissions every February and print the journal in the summer. Prometheus is distributed throughout Homewood Campus and philosophy departments across the nation. Printed issues of Prometheus are also available online.

Prometheus also publishes a bi-weekly online journal from submissions by undergraduate students from Johns Hopkins University. The online philosophy journal allows students to submit less formal essays with less guideline restrictions. This allows students more freedom in their writing and encourages active minds to continue writing and publishing their thoughts and views on various philosophic topics. At the end of each month, Prometheus picks the best essays submitted the past two weeks and prints and distributes a monthly magazine throughout the Johns Hopkins' campus.

DEADLINE: February 22, 2009

We accept submissions for the online journal at all times.
