The Johns Hopkins University Undergraduate Philosophy Journal

2009

Prometheus is an international undergraduate philosophy journal published by undergraduate students at The Johns Hopkins University. The purpose of the journal is to promote philosophic discourse of the highest standard by offering students an opportunity to engage in open discussion, participate in the production and publication of an academic philosophy journal, and to establish a community of aspiring philosophers from all walks of life.

Prometheus is published as an online journal of undergraduate philosophy papers from around the world and also hosts the annual Mid-Atlantic Undergraduate Philosophy Conference. Additionally, Prometheus prints an annual journal of the best and most illuminating submissions of the year.

This is the first.

To Matthew Holtzman
whose wisdom and guidance
made this all possible.

To our parents and teachers
who showed us that even the oldest trees
often bear the sweetest fruit.

And to the titans of the past
whose single flame
ignited the hopes and dreams
of all who search for Truth.

We dedicate this to you.
